First Prize

The Rev. Joseph Scheuer, John Metzner, and Jim Spliedt discuss the progress of the present NFCCS drive in front of the 1949 Plymouth, which is first prize in the drawing.

NFCCS Student Aid Campaign Half Finished; Prizes Announced

Half-way in its drive for funds to aid in European student rehabilitation, the NFCCS is campaigning with the car it is offering as first prize in the drawing which will be held on Feb. 11. A 1949 powder-blue Plymouth Torpedo, the prize for the person holding the lucky ticket, is now on display in Rensselaer. Local members of the NFCCS are collecting donations from the car.

Five schools have joined forces with St. Joseph's in the current drive, which is under the direction of John Metzner, president of the Fort Wayne Region of the National Federation of Catholic College Students. The Rev. Joseph Scheuer is moderator of the local unit.

As an incentive to students, a bi-weekly prize of five dollars is being offered to the one who disposes of the largest number of chances. A minimum of 15 books is stipulated. Fifty dollars will be the reward of the student who sells the most coupons, and $25.00 will go to the one who disposes of the winning stub in the course of the drive. Regional representatives on campus are ineligible to receive any of these prizes.

The drawing will be held in conjunction with the Fort Wayne Regional Congress, here, Feb. 11-12.

Lake County Club Plans Mardi Gras

At a meeting of the Lake County Club on Nov. 14, the group decided to give a pre-Lenten dance, banquet, and style show. The date chosen was February 18. A "Mardi Gras" theme will be used for the event.

Pat Gavin was appointed head of the orchestra committee and will be co-chairman with Phil McLaughlin on the decorations committee. The latter committee will also include Pastrick, D. Quinn, Druzak, Boguslaw, and Wenzel. Chosen to head the committee in charge of bids and favors was Clarence Kuhn.

Pontifical High Mass Marks Silver Jubilee of Brothers

Two Brothers of the Society of the Precious Blood, attached to St. Joseph's, will celebrate the silver jubilee of their religious profession on Tuesday, Dec. 26. They are Brother John Marling and Brother John Kreuzhermes.

The Most Rev. Joseph M. Marling, Auxiliary Bishop of Kansas City, and brother of Brother John, will be celebrant of a Pontifical High Mass of thanksgiving in the College Chapel on the jubilee day. A dinner honoring the two jubilarians, with the Collegeville community and a few friends present, will be served at noon. Later in the day a short, informal program will be presented.

Brother John Marling has spent the greater part of his life at St. Joseph's, attending the Academy and College here before he entered the Society of the Precious Blood. He made his religious profession at the Motherhouse of the Society at Carthage, Ohio, on Dec. 3, 1924, and was then assigned to St. Joseph's as instructor in mathematics and assistant prefect of discipline. He held these positions without interruption until this fall, when he was relieved of teaching assignments. At present, Brother John is prefect in Seifert Hall

Club Sees Oil Firm

The Commerce Club held its first field trip of the academic year on Monday, Dec. 12. Approximately 45 members of the club visited the Standard Oil Company of Indiana plant at Whiting. The students were escorted on a tour of the entire plant and were guests of the Company at luncheon.

In the evening, the club members were guests of Mundelein College at a social get-together. Tony Serewicz made all arrangements for the trip with the help of Fr. Gordon, Club Moderator.

The next meeting of the Club will be held shortly after the resumption of classes following the Christmas vacation. At this meeting plans will be made for the Commerce Club dance to be held early in the year.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

From amid the oft-times pagan carols, the God-unmindful and earthy pleasures, the cheap tinsel and the false glory of business' Christmas, the minds and hearts of true Christians retreat to the solitude and squalor of Bethlehem's stable, there to find Holiness, Joy, Peace, Hope. Faith reverently unveils for them the spectacle of God-Love, reveals the mystery of God-Humility as He becomes our infant Brother, shows the Almighty become weak in order to capture our hearts.

Our Christmas wish and prayer for the students of St. Joseph's and for their families is:

May the Love of Bethlehem kindle a flame in your heart,

May the humility of the Infant and of His Mother draw you,

May the devotion of Saint Joseph inspire you,

May the blessing of the new-born Christ be upon you.

(Signed)

Alfred J. Zanolar, C.P.P.S.
President of St. Joseph's

President Requests More Co-operation

"The world, today and always, hates God and the things of God, and the spirit of the world creeps into the thinking and into the lives of Catholics, and influences their actions." With these words, the Rev. Alfred J. Zanolar, president of the college, speaking at a convocation of the students, last Friday evening, warned them of the dangers of neglecting their religious duties.

Catholic education today, he said, is definitely a cooperative process, and he asked for the co-operation of the student body with the faculty.

Father Zanolar pointed out several ways in which students can do their part in making the college a better place in which to live:

1. Friendliness: "A cheery greeting, kindly interest, a willingness to help one another certainly make for a more pleasant atmosphere."
2. Sportsmanship: "I fear that

Sanguinist Club Aims for Statue

A statue of St. Joseph, just off highway 53, opposite the road leading into St. Joseph's College proper, is the object of the drive now launched by the Sanguinist Club. A life-sized, white stone replica of our patron will be erected on that spot, when the club's drive has appropriated enough money to purchase it.

Following a dime-a-month system, whereby each student is approached for 10 cents every month, the club, under the direction of the Rev. Leonard Kostka, hopes to contact a sculptor to make the statue early in 1950.

The statue, made of white Indiana stone, which grows whiter with age, will be placed in a direct line with the road leading into Collegeville. The trees bordering the drive will frame it in a gothic arch of leaves.

Christmas Concert Tomorrow Night

St. Joseph's College Concert Band will present a program of both secular and religious Christmas songs, along with a number of semi-classical pieces, tomorrow night, in the College Theatre. The 36-piece outfit will feature popular selections from the semi-classics, and numbers by a cornet quartet and a trombone trio. A xylophone solo is also on the program.

Contest Winners Named by Netols

Results of the cheer contest sponsored by the St. Joe cheer-leading squad were announced recently by Don Netols, captain of the squad. The contest was run in an effort to inspire more student pep at the Puma sports events.

The first, second, third, and fourth prize winners are: John McCann, Freddy Frisk, Al Gallo, and Joe Baker, in that order.

Professor Paul Tonner, concert director, revealed that a special stage setting has been prepared for the program, and that several novelties are slated for the evening's entertainment.

Among the popular secular numbers to be featured are: "Hora Staccato," "The Donkey Serenade," "When Yuba Plays the Rhumba," "Kollege Kapers," "March of the Leaden Soldiers," and "Flight of the Bumble Bee."

"Jingle Bells," "Joy to the World," and other favorite Christmas songs will add Yuletide atmosphere to the program.

The concert is admission free, and will begin at 8:00 p.m.

This cornet quartette is one of the features of tomorrow night's band concert.

Nineteen Xavier Hall Students Slated for Investiture Rite

Nineteen students preparing for the priesthood in the Society of the Precious Blood at Xavier Hall, here, will be invested in cassock and roman-collar by the Very Rev. S. W. Oberhauser, Provincial of the American Province, next Tuesday morning, in ceremonies concluding the annual retreat for the Xavier students.

Santa Hits St. Joe

The cafeteria was a scene of Yuletide festivities last night as students participated in a Christmas party, embellished by various entertainments. Sponsored by the Student Council Student Activities Committee, the party featured a quiz program, gifts from Santa Claus, and valuable imitations, along with songs and music.

The party's high point was the quiz program. With Tom Carmody as Master of Ceremonies, the program gave away an $18 blanket and other prizes to well-informed students.

Supplementing the quiz program were songs by the campus quartet, Philip Powers, Keith Forton, Tom Collins, and Low White. An accordion solo was rendered by John Kaczmarczyk.

The Rev. Anthony Traser, C.P.P.S., will be master of the retreat which will open Friday evening, Dec. 16, and close on Dec. 20.

The students participating in the investiture ceremonies completed their high school courses before coming to Collegeville, where they are now pursuing pre-philosophy courses in preparation for higher studies at St. Charles Seminary, Carthage, Ohio. Four of their number are World War II veterans, and two of them are brothers.

Those to be invested are: Norbert Adelman, Monroeville, Ohio; Daniel Leeuw, Fort Wayne; Edward Wildenhuis, Dayton, Ohio; Thomas and Richard Beischel, Cincinnati; James Dugal and Franklin O'Dell, Jackson, Mich.; Ivan Boykin, Springfield, Ill.; William Duff, Russell, Ky.; Louis Osterhage, Glandorf, Ohio; Alton Zimmerman, Mercersburg, Pa.; John

Now Is The Time

One thousand, nine hundred and forty-nine years. A long, long time. Nineteen and one-half centuries. Time enough for millions of men to have lived, loved, sorrowed and died. Time enough for immeasurable changes in social conditions, government, production methods, standards of living. Changes which have come and gone and have been recorded in the pages of history, many of them forgotten by all but a few. Many of the men who brought about these changes are now mentioned only in histories, only by the "intellectuals."

And yet, during these one thousand, nine hundred and forty-nine years, the influence of one Man has been growing to such power, that it is almost impossible to picture the world of today without bringing Him to mind. His coming brought about such a tremendous change in the way of life of man, that our very years are dated from the time of His life. For He came, as He had promised, and with Him, and through Him, came the redemption of mankind from the corrupt nature presented us by the first man and woman. The final reward of mankind was brought within reaching distance of any who truly sought for it. His coming was indeed the most joyful and beautiful event that has ever occurred upon earth.

A week and a half hence, the world will celebrate the anniversary of the birth of the Christ-child. In every nook and corner of the earth, prayers will proceed from the hearts of men to the Heart of the Saviour. The troubles of life will disappear momentarily in the contemplation of the lovely Child of Mary. In the veneration of the Babe of Bethlehem, men will find beauty and peace and renewed strength.

For today, more than ever, God-fearing men of strength are irrevocably needed. With the upsurge of a social philosophy, the basic nature of which excludes God and the rights which God gave man, strong men are needed to save their fellows and their descendants from the yoke of absolute slavery.

At Christmas time, men delight in the presentation of gifts to their friends and loved ones. Certainly, this Christmas is a time when men should make the supreme presentation of self to the One who has given such infinite and irreplaceable gifts to mankind. Surely, after the offering of self, in a penitent yet joyful manner to Christ, He will receive us with all the kindness of His nature. In return, from Him will come the power with which men can defend the belief in God and the equal rights of men. From Him men can gain a power which will last not only for another nineteen and one-half centuries, but which shall last until the very end of all that is finite.—D.L.C.

Is It Futile?

At the beginning of this school year, the present Junior Class of St. Joseph's began a drive to collect enough money to purchase a television set to be installed in the recreation hall.

Today is December 14, and there is no television set.

The fund at present amounts to some $115. Nearly all of this money came from Noll Hall, the residents of which contributed almost 100%.

A recent meeting of the student council brought forth the fact that the whole project is bogged down in a morass of inactivity. The men appointed as "collectors" have done little or no collecting of the $1.00 asked of each student. The students, who, after all, will benefit by the drive, have done nothing themselves.

The only move from a general condition of apathy to complete opposition is that shown by West Seifert Hall, which, almost to a man, refused to contribute to the drive.

One dollar is a small sum for constant entertainment. A television set in the rec hall would bring the boxing matches, hockey games, basketball battles, baseball games, and other events featured on video right into Collegeville's "living room."

We express the desire and hope that the Junior class will not be seniors by the time the student body bestirs itself sufficiently to attain TV.—U.C.

Seasonal Thoughts

At Christmas time the Church leads us to the manger at Bethlehem, and bids us adore the Child, the Son of God. But the swaddling clothes are a sign that this child is the Son of man, flesh of our flesh, inseparably wedded now to that human nature which God assumed that He might save it and lead it heavenward.

The Sacred Humanity makes Christ our brother and gives us the privilege of crying, "Abba, Father," to the God of Hosts. But it involves also the corollary of our universal brotherhood and we kneel in vain before the Crib if we do not experience a widening of our hearts in general charity for all the sons of men.

Joe Puma, Esq. Becomes Hero For Five Hours

Collegeville, a quiet, peaceful little community, was coasting along at its usual vibrant rate of apathetic somnolence, when a group of wandering female minstrels came to the fringes of civilization to sing songs with Collegeville's glee club.

The affect of this was startling. Joe Puma and his roommate, Dave, two of the most apathetically somnolent citizens in the community, were jarred into a frenzy of activity. They shaved for the second time since September, and even, (although this was ridiculously implausible) cleaned their room.

The general gist of the conversation that floated like a raging torrent around the campus was that the females, all of them young and beautiful, of course, would sing in a Christmas cantata at the local auditorium, then go to the gymnasium to cheer the basketball team in the game scheduled that night, and then retire to the nearby Hall of Recreation for a gay social evening with the community's rover boys.

Since the average citizen hadn't seen a real live American girl for something like two months, Collegeville was agog, then joyously expectant. The evening of the big affair turned up, and all healthy males genteely fought for a front-row seat in the auditorium. Three tone-deaf persons were especially conspicuous with downfront opera glasses.

The curtain rose for the beginning of the entertainment, and showed 30-count'em-30 young women in various styles of formal attire. The auditorium was rocked with applause for five minutes before the first song started.

By the time the first rendition was over, every girl in the group had been assorted and classified, and bets made on whether or not she was a good dancer. Every girl, from the beautiful blond soprano in the front row to the tall, hulking, muscular, female with what appeared to be orange eyes, who slightly resembled Mighty Joe Young, in a dainty way, was indelibly stamped and classified in the minds of the theatre-goers.

After the cantata, which, as everyone agreed, was "luscious," the locals tramped en masse to the gymnasium, along with the fair ladies. During the game, the cheering section went wild with continuous noise, and the team outdid itself in fancy ball-handling and trick shots in front of the girls.

After the game, a general feeling of good-will pervaded until the fatal pall was lowered on the group. The girls were gone! They had left between the halves of the game, and the after-shave lotion had been wasted!

There was no joy in Collegeville that night. The group trudged back to the residence halls, moaning, "I could even have gone for the tall one that looked like Gargantua—the one named Lulu."

A voice said, "Hey, Dave, where's your buddy Joe?"

"He should be here. Wait a minute, he hasn't been around since half-time. Anybody seen him?"

"Look, there's his hat—right where the girls' bus was standing. Oh brother, our boy Joe is a stowaway!"

A crumpled pork-pie hat, enclosing a note which stated, "Dave—don't smoke all my cigarettes," was all of Joe that could be found.

Immediately, Joe Puma was the campus hero. He had done what everyone wished he himself had done. He had stowed away on a busload of undoubtedly friendly girls, for a 100-mile trip.

Speculation ran rampant. Bets were made, this time on how much honor Joe Puma had. The general consensus was: Not much! They wondered if he'd come back engaged to the beautiful blond or not. They made wild guesses as to his probable acquaintances, and gloried in his glory.

Five hours later, Dave paced the

GAG BUSTERS

BY UTAH

It is a warm day in the month of December, and I am idly considering different ways of promoting a few shekels as a nest-egg for the expenses of the oncoming holiday season, when my pal George interrupts with the news that he knows all about the War of 1812 and Fort Sumter. Not wishing to break his heart by telling him that Fort Sumter was in the Spanish-American War, I ask him in what way he has glommed on to this vital bit of info.

"It's a snap," he says, "all us guys in the salesmanship class know important things like that."

"Oh, yeah?" I oh yeah'd, "What else do you happen to know, George?"

"Well, I am squirtingly in the knowledge group when it comes to one Don Tesmond. It seems that the boy is teaching the local town's high school at a great rate all sorts of information, when he happens to look up from the notes he is giving his lecture off and who is smiling sweetly at him from the center of the front row but a gorgeous glinch, with blond hair, blue eyes, and all the other things gorgeous glinches usually have. Tesmond, who used to pride himself on his iron will, sputters for five minutes before finding his place again.

"And Charlie Gerst is stooping to the extent of giving up his loyalty to his shuffleboard team. When the team has a game scheduled on the same night that Charlie has a date scheduled, the team shuffles on without him.

"But Don Roman is the boy with the problem of the week. After reading his Salesmanship book carefully, he finds that Romance is the best selling point. Since he is to show the class the high-powered, low-pressure method of selling insulation, he is spending his time trying to tie the two together. At present, all he has is, 'keep-cool'."

"That's all fine, George," I say, "but . . ."

"And then there's a freshman named Cavanagh," George states, "who is fast being known as Blisterbeak. He has a desire for a summer suntan, so he acquires a lamp which makes just like the sun on the Fourth of July, only stronger. He lays down about a foot under it for a half-hour, and gets up looking like catsup. The doctor says he'll be all right in a week or so, though."

George gets up to leave me with my different ways of obtaining lucre.

"Say," he says, "you might try investing in some games of chance. Freddie Welch is narrowing the margin of chance on the horse races by quite a bit these days. I understand he has now acquired the knack of talking with the bangtails, and making them talk back at him. At the Indiana State football contest, he is seen by many witnesses to make small talk with the nag that Al Fellingier is mounted on."

St. Joe Cagers Hand Wesleyan 49-45 Setback

BY BUD CLARK

Billy Krodell, Jack Dwyer, and Ray Patterson opened up last Thursday night and showed the home fans that the Pumas were going to be tough this year, as they posted a 49-45 defeat on a good Illinois Wesleyan team.

Krodell, Dwyer, and Patterson pumped in 34 points between them to lead the St. Joe five to its third win in four starts and hand Wesleyan its second straight defeat. The Titans were beaten previously, 70-63, by DePaul of Chicago.

The Pumas led 27-19 at halftime, thanks to the shooting of Ray Patterson who hit on five of 10 shots, and Krodell who dumped in five of 11 shots in the first half. The Titans fought back to knot the count a 41-41 with minutes to go, but buckets by Dwyer and Krodell sealed the victory.

St. Joe Slips Past Canterbury, 61-53

BY FRANK GILLIGAN

The St. Joe Pumas downed Canterbury College in a last half rally, 61-53, for their second win of the season. The game was played Saturday, Dec. 3, in Danville, Ind.

The Pumas, led by co-captain Ray Patterson's 12 points in 20 minutes, overcame Canterbury's 27-26 halftime lead, and surged on to victory. Patterson copped scoring honors for the evening with eight field goals and four free throws for a total of 20 points.

Applegate was highpoint man for Canterbury, ringing up 16 counters. George Peters, Puma guard, also accounted for 16 points.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

BY MIKE NASSR

The basketball season in St. Joseph's intramural sports program began Dec. 5, with eight of the 21 teams entered seeing action.

Under the direction of Mr. Fred "Butch" Jones, the program is divided into "A" and "B" leagues. There are six teams entered in the "A" league, and fifteen in the "B".

Two rounds of play are scheduled for the "B" league, while the "A" league will have three.

At the end of regular play the winners of each round will meet to determine the league champions. If there should be three different winners in the "A" league, the champions will be decided by a round-robin play-off.

The champions of each league, besides receiving gold footballs for each player, will meet to determine the St. Joe representative in the Midlands Conference Extramural tournament to be held at Loras.

The teams and their managers are:

"A" League

Brewers Joe Moore
Piggy Dinks Bob Ryan
J-Boys Lynx Quinn
Bolls Ken Weibel
Whiz Kids Don Clark
Boppers Frank Santschi

"B" League

Big Wheels Tom English
Sparkplugs Harry Rochon
Sharpshooters Don Schubert
Townners Cliff Beaver
Kigmies George Byerwalter
Daffy Dribblers Ed Ferry
Highlifters Al Fellingier
Shmoos John Dickey

Joe's Boys J. Wolf

Meet Valpo, St. Ambrose in Field House after Eastern Trip

BY BOB BRAITHEWAITE

A two-game invasion of the East and home engagements with three of the Pumas' toughest 1949-'50 cage foes will feature the next phase of St. Joe's court campaign.

After the return battle with Chicago's Maroons in the Windy City next Friday night, Art Cosgrove will lead his charges out to Trenton, N.J., where they will invade Rider College, Jan. 4. Two

Evansville Snaps Puma Win Skein

A smooth-working Evansville quintet invaded the field house, Dec. 5, and handed the St. Joe courtmen their first setback of the season, 54-42. The loss snapped a Puma two-game win skein, and served the announcement that the Cardinal and Purple lacked something to be desired in the way of smooth ball handling and sharp shooting-eyes.

The well-oiled Evansville crew stepped out in front with an 11-1 lead in the first five minutes of play. Some beautiful floor and board work by Kohlmeier, Axford and Holder kept the Puma defense off balance for most of the game.

Come Close

The Cosgrovemen fought valiantly to overcome an eight-point halftime deficit, but Evansville had enough to stave off the previously unbeaten St. Joe five. The Pumas came within four points of tying the score early in the fourth period but could never turn the trick.

George Peters and Jack Wilz were outstanding and kept St. Joseph's in the ball game during the second half. Peters whipped in 14 points, counting on five of 16 shots, and Wilz garnered 13 points, dropping field goals on six of 13 attempts.

The Puma free-throw percentage was a hefty .667 as they took advantage of Evansville hospitality on 14 of 21 occasions.

Don Dippel Voted Most Valuable

Senior tackle Don Dippel was elected most valuable player by his teammates for the season of 1949. The vote for Dippel was unanimous. At the same meeting, fullback John Frawley was elected captain for next year's squad.

Don "Lynx" Quinn was chosen on the third team of Indiana's Little All-State squad; and Al Miesch, right guard, and Wally Moore, left halfback, placed on Valparaiso University's All-Opponent eleven.

nights later, St. Joe meets the New York Athletic Club, which lost Tony Lavelli earlier in the season to the Boston Celtics. His absence, of course, should help the Pumas' chances.

Valpo at Collegeville

Returning home Wednesday, Jan. 11, St. Joe will find Valparaiso's Crusaders lurking in the field house. This will mark the 26th renewal of the Puma-Crusader series, which now stands 15-10 in favor of Valpo. Last year, the squads split two of the tightest, wildest games of the season. Valpo took the opener, 49-48 at Valparaiso, but St. Joe evened matters at Collegeville, 80-77. Results this season are expected to follow the same general pattern.

Duquesne Dukes Next

On Jan. 13, Duquesne U. inaugurates its relations with St. Joseph's. Long a power in national basketball competition, Duquesne affords one of the highlights of the field house program.

A rugged Midlands Conference aggregation, the St. Ambrose Bees, winds up this part of the season, three nights later in the field house. The Bees have edged the Pumas in three out of four previous games, sweeping both matches last year.

Dwyer, Krodell Pace Win Over Chicago

The St. Joseph Pumas pried open the lid of their 1949-'50 cage season, Dec. 1, with a 50-30 win over Chicago University in the field house. The Pumas jumped out in front early in the contest and were never headed.

Pivot-man Jack Dwyer and forward Bill Krodell paced the St. Joe victory with 15 and 13 points respectively. The Cosgrovemen hit on 18 of their 71 field goal attempts, while Chicago could master only 10 field goals in 64 attempts. It was the first meeting on the basketball court between the two schools.

NFCCS Men, Stuff Editors Check Local Magazine Vendors

BY DAVE COADY

This is one of a series of articles pertaining to the local Decent Literature Campaign. Organized early in the semester, definite action in the campaign has now begun.

Several weeks ago, the local chapter of the National Federation of Catholic College Students announced that it would take part in a nation-wide campaign against indecent literature. The drive to remove pornographic periodicals from the magazine racks is being carried out by the NFCCS in conjunction with the National Organization for Decent Literature.

Last week, the first definite contact with local distributors and vendors of "sexy" literature was made. Pete Perlongo and Tom Minardi, accompanied by the editors of STUFF, paid visits to three Rensselaer establishments which sell magazines. Perlongo and Minardi are members of the St. Joe chapter of NFCCS, and Perlongo is chairman of the campus Decent Literature Committee.

Racks Checked

Two of the business houses passed the test with flying colors. Checking the magazine racks against a list of 92 periodicals which have been disapproved by the NODL, the committee found none in the first two places. In the third, however, fully 44 of the 92 listed were displayed. Covers of detective magazines showing voluptuous heroines or victims were most in abundance.

After this check was made, it became easier to see how such publications can affect the morals of many people. Lurid covers draw the attention, and serve to play up contents which appeal to the baser instincts of readers.

Distributors Visited

Then, local distributors of magazines were visited, and the purpose of the campaign was explained to them in full. It is evident, however, that the problem cannot be attacked through the distributors, as they are under definite contracts to the publishers to handle the banned publications. They suggested that the fight be carried to the publishers.

There is still one possible point of attack, which may be all-important. Plans are being made to bring the purpose of the campaign right down to the people who are being influenced by the salacious periodicals. The local Decent Literature Committee will try to enlist the aid of various groups of townspeople. By making known to the buyers of magazines the immeasurable harm which is done by indecent literature, a sort of reader education will begin.

Student Aid Asked

Students of St. Joe are encouraged to back the campaign, not only by refusing to buy these magazines, but also by trying to influence their friends in the cultivation of good reading habits.

From time to time, STUFF will report the progress made both locally and nationally by the Decent Literature Campaign. More than 140 colleges, with a student representation of 200,000, are taking part. Through cooperation from individual students, much can be accomplished in the way of making America a clean-minded, moral nation.

Chicago Club Will Sponsor Third Yule Hop

St. Joseph's Chicago Club will sponsor its third annual Christmas Dance, on Monday, Dec. 26. Open to all members of the club, alumni, faculty, and friends, the dance will be held at the Hotel Sherman's Bal Tabarin, in downtown Chicago.

A cabaret style affair, the dance features the music of Del Rene and his orchestra, a favorite band of the Windy City. Bids are slated at $3.60 per couple.

Alex Campbell Airs Views on Treason Trials

Mr. Alex Campbell, Assistant Attorney General of the United States, left the current Alger Hiss trial to come directly to St. Joseph's for a lecture. In a dramatic way, reminiscent of Hollywood-style courtroom manner, Mr. Campbell delivered an interesting talk on the workings of the Attorney General's office in regard to the present treason trials.

Although his lecture sparked with glittering generalities and vague statements, Mr. Campbell's jovial, dramatic delivery kept his audience interested. Several statements during the question period that followed his speech were made with the stipulation that they could not be printed, and some of his opinions labeled him as a "loose constructionist" in his feelings on constitutional theory, but he left the Collegeville audience with a better understanding of the workings of the government, especially in the matter of the treason trials of Axis Sally and Alger Hiss.

SJC Glee Club Renders Cantata With St. Francis

The Glee Clubs of St. Joseph's and St. Francis College, Joliet, Ill., filled the auditorium with Christmas cheer last Thursday, when they presented a sizeable audience with carols and hymns of various types during a three-part program.

Considering the difficulties coincident with bringing the two clubs together for practice, the program was entertaining and interesting. The St. Francis girls, festively dressed in formals, began the concert with four numbers, of which "Behold That Star," was their best.

St. Joe's choral group followed with four songs, including "Canto de Aguinaldo," an Andalusian folk song, sung in Spanish with a very catchy rhythm. Mike Lehnerd and Keith Forton combined to lead this number. The Puma songsters were decked out in tuxedos, making a pleasing scene of black and white. Soph Adrian Fredeman showed surprising facility as the tenor soloist on Berlin's "Christmas Bells."

Both clubs were on stage for the finale, "The Song of Christmas," a musical story including the best-known holiday songs. This last part of the program was climaxed by the singing of "Venite Adoremus." The last two-thirds of the program was directed by Mr. Daniel Connor, instructor in music at St. Joe.

A quartette including Keith Forton, Lou White, Phil Powers, and Tom Collins sang Mr. Connor's arrangement of "White Christmas." This quartette has had several engagements in surrounding towns. The St. Joe Glee Club went to Joliet Sunday, for presentation of the concert there that evening.

and is assisting in the Office of Student Welfare.

Brother John Kreuzhermes is a native of Hannover, Germany, and served in the German army in World War I before entering the religious life. He became a postulant for the brotherhood in the Teutonic Province of the Society at Feldkirch, Austria in 1922, but transferred to the American Province in the fall of 1924. He made his religious profession at Carthagen on Jan. 22, 1925, and was engaged in farm and dairy work there until his assignment to St. Joseph's 10 years ago. Similar work occupies his time here.

STUFF congratulates these two Brothers, and wishes them many more years in the service of God and their community.

floor of his room, waiting for Joe. He settled into the most comfortable chair and lit Joe's last cigarette as the door swung gently open and Joe himself danced in, a seraphic look in his eyes and a sickeningly sweet smile on his face.

"I'm in love," he announced. Dave leaped from his chair. "With the blond?" he asked, expectantly.

"What blond? The only one I saw was the big one with the orange eyes. Her name's Lulu." Joe blushed and looked aside. "We, uh, we—held hands."

For two weeks, nobody spoke to Joe Puma.

"Much Ado About Nothing" Reviewed by Ralph Cappuccilli

Perhaps one of the most entertaining evenings experienced by local theatregoers was provided by the Catholic University Players of Washington, D. C. in the college auditorium, Saturday night. The troupe's presentation of Shakespeare's comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing," was more than ample proof that Shakespeare still has universal appeal. Skillfully staged by Rev. Gilbert V. Hartke, O.P., and brilliantly acted by a company of well-seasoned players, the bard and his followers were left with little to be desired.

President Requests

in this respect the student body hasn't been a credit to the college. . . . Root for your team, cheer your heads off, but be gentlemen."

3. Quiet in the halls: "If you don't want to study, why prevent others?"

4. Punctuality: "A chronic failing against consideration for others is the widespread habit of coming late for everything. . . . When it is the question of your Sunday Mass, it is at least a venial sin, depending on how late you are."

5. Care of campus and buildings: "Just a little care will keep our lawns in condition. Use the sidewalks—actually you save so very little time by the shortcut. . . . The halls and classrooms can be kept neater and cleaner with just a little helpfulness on your part."

6. Religious exercises: Here, Father Zanolar strongly urged attendance at daily Mass and other devotions, and stressed the privilege of serving Mass. He encouraged visits to Father Charles Herber, College Chaplain, for religious counselling.

Speaking of student failings as a whole, the president said: "I might liken them to blemishes upon the otherwise fair complexion of the student body. But they are unsightly blemishes and we are much embarrassed when we have to apologize for them to others."

Father Zanolar touched briefly upon St. Joseph's relations with the North Central Association of Colleges and Universities. He said that application had again been made for accreditation by the North Central, and that the college will be examined by a committee about the middle of January.
